DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1 to 4 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1 to 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Japanese patent 2003-64449 cited by applicant in IDS dated October 2, 2006.
4. JP'449 on page 2 discloses a steel tube alloy having a composition with constituents whose wt% ranges overlap those recited by the claims; such overlap establishes a prima facie case of obviousness because it would be obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to select the claimed alloy wt% ranges over the broader disclosure of the prior art since the prior art, similar to the present invention, teaches a high strength tube with a bainitic phase, see MPEP 2144.05.
5. More specifically, JP'449 steel 18 in table 7 on page 11 meets the claimed composition except for 1.42% Mn which is slightly lower than the claimed Mn range of 1.5 to 2.5%. It would, however, be obvious to increase Mn content, since prior art teaches a broad Mn range of 0.3 to 1.5%. Also, applicant has not demonstrated the claimed Mn range of 1.5 to 2.5% (e.g. by comparative test data) to be somehow critical and productive of new and unexpected results. Note applicant's specification on page 5 disclose 0.5 to 2.5% Mn as permissible.

6. Furthermore, JP'449 steel 18 has a  $Ceq=0.702$  and is within the claimed range of 0.60 to 0.85. Even though prior art does not teach the  $Ceq$  equation recited by Claim 1, such would not be a patentable difference since it has been held that there is no invention involved in the discovery of a general formula if it covers a composition described in the prior art.

7. Even though the English abstract of JP'449 discloses heating and cooling in a continuous heat treatment furnace to form bainite whereas applicant on page 8 of his specification avoids heat treatment by hot rolling and cooling to form bainite, and claims "a non-heat treated steel ", such would not be a patentable distinction. Note that in a product-by-process claim, the patentability is determined by the product per se and not the process limitations. The burden falls to the applicant to show that any process steps associated with the claimed product result in a materially different product from those of the prior art, because there is nothing in the record before the examiner to reasonably conclude that applicant's product differs in kind from those obtained by prior art, see MPEP 2113.

Conclusion

7. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

Art Unit: 1742

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
